

Boil Water Advisories

The Ohio Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) pursuant to Ohio Administrative Code (OAC) 3745-83-02 indicates when precautionary Boil Water Advisories are to be issued. The City of Zanesville is required to comply with these regulations and therefore the Water Division will issue Boil Water Advisories accordingly.

Please be assured that the City of Zanesville Division of Water will continue to take numerous precautions, and conduct tests to ensure the water is safe when service disruptions occur.

Communications

If a Boil Water Advisory is issued, those directly affected will be notified via door hangers and/or a public notice is distributed to all local media outlets.

(See Excerpt Below)

BOIL ADVISORY - ISSUED – MONTH/DATE/YEAR

Due to a water main break Zanesville water customers in the areas listed below may experience low pressure.

Once repairs are completed and service is restored the Zanesville Water Division is issuing a precautionary boil advisory. After service is restored and until further notice, vigorously boil, for at least one minute, any water used for drinking (including water used to make ice), cooking or oral hygiene."

The precautionary boil advisory is issued only for the affected area listed. Water samples will be collected once the work is completed and service is restored. An additional notice will be given when the boil advisory is lifted.
